

NUH Referral Laboratories (NRL)

Founded in 1987 as a joint venture with Medlux AB, a Swedish company jointly owned by Medscand AB & AB Electrolux*, NRL was initially known as Medlux Laboratories Pte Ltd (mxLab). In 1991, it became a wholly owned, independent, subsidiary of NUH and was renamed as NUH Referral Laboratory (NRL).

*Medscand AB was the largest private laboratory in Sweden

NRL serves as the outreach arm of the National University Hospital's (NUH) Department of Laboratory Medicine (DLM) to external clients in local medical institutions and private laboratories as well as overseas. While DLM concentrates on laboratory analyses, NRL coordinates with the clients and administers the logistics.

NRL's client service personnel are well trained to handle queries regarding the types of tests available, service hours, type of supplies available, specimen collection, transportation condition, test results and others. Aligned with Department of Laboratory Medicine's testing schedules, test results are delivered back to the clients as soon as they are completed.
